FOREWORD

To publish a year book has long been a cherished desire of several members of the senior class. In order to make this more than a mere dream, they have spent many hours finding ways to finance the undertaking, planning, writing, re-writing and assorting the material for the book, the school's first.

Therefore you can hardly realize the joy these members have in seeing their hope come true. They know that their book is not without its defects, but they earnestly hope they have laid a foundation for future classes to build on.

I wish to thank sincerely all my classmates who have worked hard for our year book, the teachers who have so kindly aided in many ways, and all those who have given their financial assistance.

THROUGH THE YEARS WITH '38

A Biography

INTRODUCTION

To give us and former members of our class opportunities that many of them themselves were unable to have, the citizens of the town of Exeter have spent nearly forty thousand dollars. We hope that we will fulfill their expectations and make it a worthy investment.

As we leave Exeter High, some of us to continue our education, others to take our places in the working world, we cannot help but think of the many good times we have had together. The years we studied and played together will always be remembered.

CHAPTER ONE

Our "Life" Begins

Early in September of '32 the class of '38 of Exeter High was "born" — a remarkable class. Fifty vacation-tanned youngsters made a rush for the best seats in Miss Masterman's room. This new-born class had (and, according to all our home room teachers, still has) something in common with a baby, the ability to make a lot of noise.

We were very much impressed by the large rooms and the fact that we had so many teachers. Passing from one room to another proved interesting at first, but after a few weeks the novelty wore off, and we settled down to our studies, which included a new source of trouble, French.

In November a poll was conducted among the entire student body. Roosevelt defeated Hoover, and thus foretold the latter's defeat.

Each year, just before school closes for the Christmas holidays, a Christmas party is given Classes I and II in the auditorium where a play is presented by Mrs. MacNabb's English classes, carols sung by Miss Bruton's French students, and inexpensive gifts exchanged. Of course the entire class attended. This year two were in the English play and many more were carolers.

For the first time in our school career we were engaged in many school activities: History Club, Science Club, Junior High Baseball. Naturally our specialty was the chief attraction of the school show.

CHAPTER TWO

Bosses of Junior High

Every normal schoolboy longs for summer vacation, but deep down in our hearts we were glad to return the next fall. Mrs. MacNabb greeted us as our new home room teacher. We took a very active interest in the History Club, all of whose officers were members of our class. Raymond Martell was president, Lionel Carbonneau, vice-president, Robert Winkler, secretary and Elmer Stevens, treasurer. A historical play written by the latter was presented in the auditorium by the members of the History Club.

This year most of the cast of the English play at the Junior High Christmas party were from our class and a larger number again sang French carols.

We presented a specialty in the school show and many of us were members of the Junior High baseball team. Raymond Martell received the Sons of the American Revolution medal, the award for the all-around boy in the eighth grade.

CHAPTER THREE

We Become Dignified

To be dignified one must be at least a Freshman. Therefore, when we realized we were in the main room as Freshmen, we acquired plenty of dignity. Future Barrymores were budding when several had character parts in the school show, and others were in the chorus. The athletically minded boys had their first taste of varsity football while continuing their baseball instruction with Mr. Parker.

CHAPFER FOUR

"Wise Fools"

In the autumn of 1935 thirty-seven sophomores thought they were somebody until Mr. Rowe told them a sophomore was a "wise fool." In our first year as competitors in Prize Speaking, Carl Schur was chosen to declaim and Elmer Stevens received third prize in composition. This year varsity sports began to find the value of our athletes. Many again took part in the school show. In the spring we selected our class officers and, after much discussion, our class rings. Soon we were proudly displaying them.

CHAPTER FIVE

Main Room Monarchs

Next to Seniors, the Juniors are the most important personages in school. We, like all true Juniors, would not even admit our inferiority. Outside activities increased greatly as more and more our athletes were receiving regular berths on the varsity teams.

A presidential poll was held in November and we became a second Literary Digest, predicting Landon to defeat Roosevelt. The seventh and eighth grades became "Maine" and "Vermont" and went heavily Republican.

In Prize Speaking competition, Carl Schur, Thaddeus Klemarczyk and Robert Crosbie were chosen to declaim, while compositions of Robert Winkler and Lionel Carbonneau were read. Robert Crosbie received third prize in declamation, Robert Winkler and Lionel Carbonneau receiving first and third respectively in composition. The high spot of any Junior year is the Prom and ours set the pace for all our dances, probably never being equalled.

Elmer Stevens received first prize in a contest sponsored by the Exeter Tercentenary Committee. Most of the ushers for the Senior reception were members of our class.

CHAPTER SIX

Angels at Last

The events of this year are told elsewhere in this book. We might add, however, that after twelve years of constant studying, research and cramming for "exams," we have come to know all there is to know — about nothing.

SENIOR FALL DANCE

COMMITTEE

RAYMOND MARTELL, Chairman

ROBERT WINKLER — FRANCIS WALSH

CLAUDE DORMAN — LIONEL CARBONNEAU

The Exeter High 1937-38 social season was opened on Friday, October, 15. when the Senior Fall Dance was held.

The Auditorium was cleverly decorated with colored lights by Robert Crosbie, a scheme the class inaugurated so successfully at their Junior Prom. Jean Meserve and his orchestra furnished the music for the first social and financial success of the season.

ROBERT WINKLER.

BENEFIT DANCE

On November 6, 1937, a benefit dance was held at the Town Hall, sponsored by the members of the football squad, Coach Knox and Mr. McBride. Many of the boys in the school helped by selling tickets. The cause was further aided by donations from several townspeople. A substantial sum was raised for "Joe" Mazurka, a senior, who received a very bad knee injury in the first football game of the season.

Music for the dance, which was a great social success, was furnished by "Art Rock and His Orchestra."

After the accident, all of the boys on the squad who wanted to could take out insurance against injury on the playing field. The cost was divided equally among the boy, the Athletic Association and the School Board.

CLAUDE DORMAN.

JUNIOR HIGH CHRISTMAS PARTY

For several years at the annual Christmas party for Classes I and II it has been the custom for pupils of Mrs. MacNabb's English classes to present a short play. This year before the Christmas recess, "Knights of the Holy Treasure" was presented, a venture of a serious sort.

The time was the present and the scene a winter garden. Dr. Hexin, an old-fashioned doctor, who had long been a knight, was well portrayed by Edwin Collishaw. A newspaper man, a fantastic caricature of the newspaper, was played by Winslow Kent. Lewis Churchill and Thomas Lung appeared as Phillippe, a modern youth, who became a knight, and Delandia, a modern girl. The three judges were Real Frechette, Robert Light and Orville Cunningham. Statues of the three Wise Men which came to life and spoke were posed by John Bernier, Hunter Lees, and Carleton McWilliams. Robert C. Smith, Roger Higgins, Joseph Boutwell and Robert Schur, dressed as ballet dancers, were snow fairies; Raymond McReel, Robert F. Smith and Joseph St. Amour, similarly dressed, were star fairies.

French pupils, under the direction of Miss Bruton, sang carols. A solo was sung by William Carney of Class I.

ANNUAL SCHOOL SHOW

In 1916, the first High School Show, a musical and vaudeville performance, under the direction of Mr. Maro Brooks, then superintendent of schools, was enacted in the Ioka Theatre, to raise funds to help pay for the grand piano now used in the Main Room of the school. The following year the boys joined with the girls of the Robinson Seminary to present an operetta in the Town Hall. Then in 1918, Miss Katherine McGovern, a member of the faculty at that time, drilled the boys in a musical comedy, and in 1919 Mr. McBride, now head of the mechanic arts department, became a member of the general committee and has, ever since, taken an active part in directing the shows and in looking after the financial details. That same year, also, Mr. Rowe started as musical director. Miss Ford and Miss Conant, when they became members of the teaching staff of the school, also became members of the directing committee and, with Mr. McBride, have been in charge of the show annually. The proceeds go into a general fund used for the various activities in extra-curricular work of the school, although in recent years, it has been necessary for the committee to donate the greatest part of it to help maintain athletics.

A committee is appointed in November to select a play suitable for a large cast of boys. Then a committee finds music for the type of play, characters and for young male voices.

Some of the published music has to be changed and many of the orchestrations written or re-written entirely to make them fit the needs of the cast. Auditions are given prospective players and soloists. Meanwhile a chorus is chosen on past experience and musical ability. Rehearsals then commence, speaking parts in one room, the chorus in another, and the specialties in another. Special costumes are planned and sometimes made by the teachers.

The part that few people realize is that the experienced men of the orchestra have only one rehearsal and that the first performance is the first time that they accompany the boys.

The scenery is constructed by the manual training students, supervised by their instructor. Advertising and ticket sale is in charge of the faculty. In fact, it can be stated that every person in the school has an active part.

Classes I and II each presents its own specialty that never fails to provide the "finishing touch."

"Professor Pepp"

"Professor Pepp," this year's show, was presented March 11 and 12 in the Town Hall. Robert Crosbie ably portrayed Professor Peterkin Pepp, who had just returned from Russia where he became involved in a "revolutionary" plot. Before he learned that it was a joke, the poor professor lived in constant fear of his life, much to the delight of the student body. Seniors Robert Winkler, Thaddeus Klemarczyk, Raymond Martell, Lionel Carbonneau and Chester Rowe, as well as Robert Crosbie, were in the cast.

For specialties, "Parade of the Penguins," was presented by Class II under Miss Bruton's supervision, and "Ten Pretty Girls," supervised by Miss Masterman, by Class I.

Since '16, some time ago,
Every year a fine school show.
The class of nineteen thirty-eight
Hopes they'll never terminate.

LIONS CLUB BANQUET

The combined varsity football and basketball squads with Coach George Knox and Mr. Harold McBride, faculty manager, were the guests of the Exeter Lions Club at a banquet held at the Exeter Inn on Monday, March 21. Charles W. Caldwell, president of the Lions Club, was the toastmaster.

Mr. Martin W. Souders, football coach at Phillips Exeter Academy, gave an interesting talk on athletics; and through the courtesy of Dr. Henry Phillips of the Academy, motion pictures of recent football games, including the 1937 Exeter-Andover game, were shown.

The boys want to express their gratitude for the fine support and interest the Lions Club has given them in their school activities.

MERRILL PRIZE SPEAKING

Due to the generosity and foresight of Dr. Abner L. Merrill, rhetorical prizes have been made available for Exeter High Students. When, in 1895, Mr. Merrill established a fund for this purpose, he was "hoping thereby to promote in the School an earnest and increased interest in the subject of English Composition and Declamation" and he very much desired "that every boy who enters the High School shall have these prizes placed before him as a stimulus and incentive to make the best use of the opportunity given him to so perfect himself in the Art of English Composition and general declamation that to be known as an Exeter High School prize boy shall be esteemed an honor worth striving for."

Since the first contest, December 10, 1896, up to and including April, 1937, forty contests have been held, three hundred and seventy-five boys competing for prize money totaling $3,160. Only in the 1906-07 period, when Mr. Merrill himself deemed it advisable that the prize money should be used for reference books, was there no contest.

Prize speaking is open to all boys of the upper three classes. The authors of the three best compositions, in the judges' opinion, and about seven declaimers, selected by the faculty or entered through a boy's own initiative, speak in public. Six prizes, three in composition and three in declamation, of $20, $12 and $8, are awarded the winners by the judges.

The forty-first annual contest for the Abner L. Merrill prizes in composition and declamation was held in the High School Auditorium, Thursday, April 21, 1938.

JUNIOR PROM

As we go to press, the class of 1939 is eagerly awaiting the great event of their Junior year, the Prom. A committee comprising Joseph Petroski, chairman, Robert Varrill, William Brewster, Kenneth Jewell, Richard Brewitt and Henry Mazalewski, is diligently planning decorations and favors. When this class steps out on May 6 to dance to "Art Rock and His Orchestra's" fox trots and waltzes, it is going to show the school a real Junior Prom!

Best of luck for a social and financial success, thirty-niners!

FRENCH CLUB

Honor pupils (boys who attain a mark of 85), whose names appear on the monthly honor roll at least three times during the school year, are planning for their annual outing at Hampton Beach this June under the supervision of Miss Bruton. Parents and teachers have kindly co-operated in furnishing transportation for the boys.

MUSIC FESTIVAL

A group of boys from Exeter High and girls from Robinson Seminary will go to Nashua May thirteenth and fourteenth of this year to play in the All-State Orchestra. This is the tenth anniversary of the New Hampshire School Music Festival, of which Mrs. Johnson is president. The committees in charge expect two hundred in the Orchestra and nearly two hundred and fifty in the State Chorus. Massed bands, Glee Clubs, Ensembles and soloists will also participate during the two days and on Saturday a parade of bands will take place. All members of these groups will receive state certificates, and ratings will be given the Saturday morning tryouts. We have no contest this year.

Sectional rehearsals of the orchestra have been held in various cities in order to give the musicians the experience of playing in larger groups than their own. We expect to send the following boys: Thaddeus Klemarczyk, violin, three years in the All-State Orchestra, Everett Bean, violin, two years in the All-State Orchestra, Richard Brewitt, clarinet, and Carl Brewitt, flute.

Early last September before the opening of school, Mr. Knox, the new coach, issued his first call for football candidates and was greeted by a very inexperienced bunch of eager-to-learn football lovers.

The first weeks were devoted to conditioning and revealed few "finds." Finally, of the forty-odd fellows who reported, three teams were formed and signal practice began. The first game proved to be a jinx as a promising star was lost for the entire season with a broken knee. This demoralized the team somewhat, which lost three straight games by considerable margins. We succeeded in breaking our ill luck and defeated a good Berwick Academy team. We lost a close one to a highly favored Portsmouth High team and the following week we were overpowered by a heavy Phillips Exeter Academy Second team. Our season ended Armistice Day when we were defeated by Rochester High.

In the first campaign under the leadership of Coach George C. Knox, with the assistance of Leonard "Lefty" Nelson, the boys learned teamwork and gained valuable experience for future years.

Closing the resume, the class and senior members of the 1937 squad wish Coach Knox and his gridiron cohorts much good luck and many victories. We also hope that there will be a large delegation of fellow students and townspeople present at each game ready to urge the boys on to victory. Best wishes to Captain-elect Joseph Petroski and his 1938 team!

High school students are exceedingly glad to learn that through the efforts of many townspeople a sum was appropriated at the last school meeting to improve their athletic field, badly in need of repair.

(Editor's Note: Captain Francis "Red" Walsh received a berth on the New Hampshire All-State Class A Basketball Team, the first Exeter High athlete to receive such an honor.)

Thirty-two candidates answered Coach Knox's early December call for Basketball candidates. After four weeks of steady practice a team of unknown quality, for there were only two regulars from last year's squad, was ready to be tested against the Alumni. Emerging victorious from our first encounter, 40-19, we went through one of the best seasons in Exeter High's Basketball history, winning ten out of twelve games.

So successful was our season that we were the first Exeter High team to be invited to compete in the annual Inter-scholastic Basketball tournament at the state university, held this year, February 25 and 26. After defeating Nashua 29-18 in the preliminaries, we lost to Keene 40-27 in the semi-finals.

Although Coach Knox's first E. H. S. Basketball team made a fine showing, we hope to see next year's team, guided by Captain-elect Henry "Jackie" Mazalewski, state champions.

CAPTAIN FRANCIS WALSH.

BASKETBALL SECONDS

Of the thirty-two candidates for the 1938 basketball team, seventeen survived the final cut. Ten of these were kept to play on the Second Team. To play on the Second Team of 1938 was no disgrace. One had the opportunity to play with one of the best teams in the state. Three of the team were picked to travel with the Varsity to the out-of-town games, and to the tournament at Durham.

The boys of the Second Team did not make such a bad showing, although they did lose three games. Two games were lost to Epping High School, and one to Somersworth High School Seconds in an over-time period. They won games from Somersworth Seconds in return game, the Kingston Tigers, the Plaistow Flashes and Raymond High School.

I am sure that the boys who come up from this year's Second Team to play on next year's first string will be able to hold their own with the old and battle scarred players that will be left after this year's graduation.

Although there will be many new faces on this year's nine, prospects for Coach Knox's first Exeter High Baseball team look bright. The squad comprises Petroski and Magoon, catchers; Walsh, Dorman, McNulty and Swiezynski, pitchers; Freedman, Brewster, Mazalewski, Brewitt and Richard, infielders; Martell, Cote, Wasiewski, Papandrew, and Cottrell, outfielders. Others working out include Adams, Lewis, Schur and Lane.

We are all pulling together for victory, but win or lose, the entire team will display fine sportsmanship, characteristic of all Exeter High teams.

CAPTAIN FRANCIS WALSH.

JUNIOR HIGH BASEBALL

At the start of the 1938 Junior High Baseball season, a squad of 38 reported, including five letter men from last season. This squad was cut to 23 after about a week on the field. If spirit alone could win games, we should win all the games on the 1938 schedule. It is a hopeful sign to see the entering class give such support as this class has produced.

At this date, two games have been decided upon with each of the following schools: Emerson, Newmarket, and Hampton, with a possible third game with the latter. Two games are under consideration with each of the following: Salisbury, Amesbury and Portsmouth.

I might add that since the first season in 1925, 14 have received three Junior High insignias each, 30 have received two each, and 85 have received a single insignia, making a total of 187 awarded.

THE EXETER HI-Y CLUB

President . . . . . KENNETH JEWELL
Vice-President . . . . . ROBERT WINKLER
Secretary . . . . . LIONEL CARBONNEAU
Treasurer . . . . . ROBERT CROSBIE
Warden . . . . . WILLIAM BREWSTER

As the school year 1937-1938 draws to a close, the first season of the Exeter Hi-Y Club also ends. Starting in late October with ten members, the organization has now twenty boys in the sophomore, junior and senior classes. Mr. George Knox, coach at Exeter High School, was asked to be the leader and immediately accepted. Rev. Paul Martin of the Exeter Congregational Church and Mr. Percy E. Jewell were chosen as advisers of the club.

The club is both a service and a social organization and during the past season has had chance for both. Besides many educational and instructive meetings, the club has had several social evenings. On the service side, the boys sold programs during the sled dog races, sponsored by the Exeter Lions Club. They were also the first boys in school to be asked to usher during visitors' week.

Five of our members were football letter-men and six received basketball letters. Two were chosen to compete in the annual Prize Speaking Contest and one is a member of the school orchestra. None of the boys belonging to the club has an average of less than 75%. That is one requirement for a boy wishing to join the organization.

We can well call this first year a successful one. We could not have done so if we had not been given such wonderful co-operation every way we turned. First, we wish to express our gratitude to Mr. Knox who gave his time and influence to make our club the organization it is today. Thanks also go to Rev. Mr. Martin and Mr. Jewell who helped guide the club along the right paths, and lastly, to the Congregational Church for permission to meet in the recreation room weekly.

As the seniors depart this year, they leave several holes which will be difficult to fill, but the Hi-Y of Exeter is looking ahead to the next school year and hoping to make it the second successful year of the Exeter Hi-Y Club. KENNETH JEWELL, President.

THE HISTORY CLUB

1937-1938

President . . . . . ROBERT BYRON
Vice-President . . . . . ROBERT RAMSDELL
Secretary . . . . . HENRY E. SHUTE
Treasurer . . . . . IRVING BREWSTER

In May, 1932, a small group of Class II boys organized a club known as the History Club. As its purpose at the time was to learn more of the history of Exeter, arrangements were made to visit the historic Cincinnati House. Woodrow McLane, the first president, and Alfred Fernald, the first secretary, and now a student at New Hampshire University, did much to start the infant organization on its way.

The first field trip to the Cincinnati House proved most interesting. Charles Thomson read excerpts from a state document prepared by Miss Edith Green on the Cincinnati House and the Society of the Cincinnati. The Stuart painting of George Washington, the replica of George Washington's desk, colonial utensils of all kinds, and many other things were a revelation to the boys. Twice since other groups have enjoyed a similar trip.

The following year as the club grew in interest and popularity and plans for longer trips were made, it became necessary to limit its membership. This was done by requiring each member to have at least a rank of "B" or eighty-five percent. for his quarter average in American History. In 1935 a constitutional committee was appointed: Edwin Wiggin, Verne Smith, and Kenneth Jewell, now of the class of 1939.

The club work is carried on by boys of Classes I and II but at that time it was agreed that any boy in the High School who had been a member the last quarter in his Class II year might remain in the club as an honorary member and participate in field trips. Elmer Stevens, Robert Winkler, Thaddeus Klemarczyk, Raymond Martell and Robert Crosbie, now seniors, have been loyal supporters throughout their six years at High School, have been on nearly all trips, and have been of great assistance in helping to share the responsibilities of the club.

In 1934 the club made Mr. Willard Rowe the first honorary member of the club. In 1937 Judge Henry Shute was a guest speaker at an open meeting when the club invited the entire student body as guests. Judge Shute read selections from one of his own books and the boys greatly enjoyed seeing and hearing him. To show their appreciation they invited him to become another honorary member of the club.

Many interesting places in southern New Hampshire, Maine and Massachusetts have been visited. These trips are usually made on Saturday. We leave in the morning, carry a basket lunch, and return late in the afternoon. A school bus is usually available and about fifty cents apiece covers all expenses. Mrs. Richard Shute, who is a most loyal supporter, has twice accompanied us in her own car, thus enabling a larger group to go, and aiding in many ways.

Beside the Cincinnati House we have visited the Garrison House in Exeter; the Old Jail in York Village, Maine; the Bartlett house in Kingston, where Mrs. Levi Bartlett, a most gracious hostess, thrills the boys with her tales of Revolutionary Days and Josiah Bartlett, the first occupant of the house and a signer of the Declaration of Independence; the Whittier birthplace and the Captain's Well in Amesbury, Mass.; Odiorne's Point in Rye; the Woodman Institute in Dover; Fort McClary in Kittery, Maine; and the Frost Garrisons, in York, Maine.

Captain Adams at Adams Point made one trip an outstanding one. The boys were his guests at his home on Great Bay where they crawled all over his gundelow, then in the process of construction, being hewn out by hand as in the days when gundelows were used on the Exeter River.

On April 10, 1937, we ventured farther than usual and spent the day in Lexington and Concord, Mass. We visited the Lexington Green, the Hancock-Clark House, and the old Belfry in Lexington; the historic North Bridge, Colonial Inn, the Wright Tavern, Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, and the Public Library in Concord. An unexpected treat was a stop at the Mohawk Trading Post in Concord.

When some unusually good moving picture of historical interest comes along, we plan a movie party, attending in a group. Rarely our business meetings are social. One held at the home, of the club adviser will long be remembered for the puppet show put on by Robert Crosbie a fire in the neighborhood barn to which the boys hurriedly fled, and delicious cakes made by understanding mothers.

The club records are a constant source of enjoyment for they contain pictures taken during the trips, reports of all meetings and trips, and letters from the late Edward Tuck, Daniel Carter Beard, the late Ambrose Swasey, and several others, when in 1933 the boys carried on a citizenship project.

At present a stamp unit is a new feature of the club. Lionel Carbonneau has given talks on stamp collecting, and we are starting a stamp collection of historical stamps of the United States.

Our club is an incentive to better work in history; it furnishes much pleasure; and it points a profitable way to spend one's leisure time. The interest it creates is far reaching and it does much to develop civic pride. We trust the boys who carry it on in years to come may continue to make it a very worthwhile project.

SCHOOL SONG

Other schools may deem their banners best,
And cheer them with fervent elation,
But the schools of the North and South and West
Cannot beat our school, the best in the nation.

Then cheer for dear Exeter High;
May we ever unite in our efforts
To make it the pride of the state,
And never show it hate.

Let rivals remember the day
When our heroes with mighty endeavor
Proclaim, as they march to the fray,
That by their right and by their might, we win forever.

EXETER TERCENTENARY

In sixteen hundred thirty-eight
A settlement was made,
Where the town of Exeter now stands,
But then 'twas a forest glade.

The men of the colony worked day after day,
Clearing the forest and making houses, they say.

Then came the Navigation Acts
Forbidding them to trade,
Forbidding them to sell the things
They for a living made.

The people all over the country took up arms;
They left their homes, their fields, their farms.

They wanted freedom and their right,
So it seemed to them they'd have to fight.
Taking their rifles they marched away,
They fought and bled for many a day.

When they came back
Freedom they had won,
So they took up the plough
And put away the gun.

Now it is nineteen hundred thirty-eight,
So we our tercentenary celebrate.
